

Role of the local coordinator

One of the most critical things that you will do as the coordinator is to work with your year-round and seasonal volunteers. Who you recruit and how you work with them can make your program a huge success or it can make it a frustrating experience for everyone involved. This section will discuss some of the key ingredients in working with volunteers.

The Role of the Local Coordinator

The local coordinator is the designated representative of SONC who has the responsibility for successfully implementing Special Olympics activities within his/her assigned geographic area. This responsibility holds whether the local coordinator is paid or volunteer, full-time or part-time, working alone or with an assistant or local committee. In many ways, the local coordinator is the lynchpin of the Special Olympics system, the essential element in managing the successful operation of Special Olympics at the local level.

Completion of this task requires that the local coordinator appreciates the importance and magnitude of this role and recognizes that the responsibility being placed upon the local coordinator is to serve as the manager and team leader for all of the volunteers working within their geographic area. The proper role of the local coordinator is not so much to DO everything, as it is to arrange that other Special Olympics volunteers are empowered and encouraged to implement the program.

It is quite obvious that no one person could, or should, attempt to assume full responsibility for completing all of the duties at the local level. If Special Olympics is to grow and meet its responsibility to provide opportunities for individuals with intellectual disabilities, it must also grow to involve more people to carry out the responsibilities, which are necessary for the effective operation of a Special Olympics local program.

Local coordinators must play an essential role in making the Special Olympics volunteer system operate effectively. All management systems require someone to oversee the operation of the system, to plan the scheduled activities, and to manage and lead the team of individuals who will implement planned activities. In the Special Olympics system, it is the local coordinator who performs these managerial functions.

A coordinator's managerial duties can be divided into three areas:

1. Managing both the local committee and other local volunteers.
2. Planning for Special Olympics local activities including training, competitions, fundraising events.
3. Evaluating and reporting on local activities as requested/required.
